Directions: Watch Sherry Turkle's TED talk "Connected But Alone?" and read the transcript. Answer the following questions and select evidence from Turkle's talk that lead you to your answers. Be specific in explaining and citing your evidence from Turkle's talk. Use her words as evidence and comment in your own words when explaining.

Questions toward Summarizing (if you can answer these, you'll be very prepared to summarize Turkle):

1. How has our relationship to technology changed over the years? What sorts of "new" behaviors does Turkle see with how people use technology?

Our relationship with the technology has changed to bad; now, the people depends of the messages in Facebook or the stories in Instagram. Technology has created a dependency to the humans and this is so sad, because we are no longer ourselves. Besides, the people wants with this be in a lot of places at once, with the objective of control the focus of attention.

2. According to Turkle, why we are so enamored with mobile devices?

We are like this because with the mobiles we have the opportunity to create a different person than we are, with the objective to be able to sell ourselves better to those who interest us.

3. What does she think are the major consequences for preferring to communicate with technology?

4. Describe the Goldilocks' effect.

The Goldilocks' effect is the premise that are inclined to seek "just the right amount" of something. In this case of technology, Turkle explains that one man with 40 years don't need a lot of hours with the mobile than a teen, because the last lives his relationships in the mobile. This mean that every person has his own right amount of something.

Questions for Analyzing and Thinking Critically (good for annotating and digesting text):

1. If someone accused Turkle of being a "hater," what would you say to them? Does she hate technology? How do you know this?

2. TED stands for Technology, Entertainment, and Design. Audiences at TED talks are often technology lovers, which might make them "sensitive" to Turkle's message. How does she seem to craft her talk to work with this audience?

3. How satisfying do you find Turkle's evidence? How well does she account for what our social lives actually look like today offline?
